ᐧABSTRACT:

A data processing apparatus executes a program. A number of operations has to be executed at a data dependent points in time. This is implemented by executing a data independent series of instructions at data independent points in time. The series of instructions includes instructions whose completion is dependent on data dependent

5   conditions. Using the conditions it is selected which of the executed instructions cause the operations to be executed.

Fig.1